

Every Inch of the Bates Steel Mule is Thoroughbred

The United States Government by means of the Department of Agriculture, has been looking into the tractor situation, and its bulletins clearly prove that the satisfied owner—men who say that the tractor has paid—more than own the BETTER CLASS of tractors. The successful farmer has learned years ago that he can't get something for nothing. No one can. The reason the BATES STEEL MULE costs more is that it is worth more. Skilled factory procedure, production and the most modern machinery enables us to save money at every turn, yet the BATES STEEL MULE costs slightly more in the beginning to build but considerably less in the long run to own. It's just another case where a second higher priced article is far cheaper to own when you actually USE it.

The Bates thoroughbred quality comes not from claims, but from what's put into it. Every part that goes into the BATES STEEL MULE is put there by long experience. There isn't a part that isn't time-tried and tested. There isn't a part that experience hasn't dictated the size and; and in it all there isn't one superfluous part, one part that isn't capable of standing up under twice the strain it gets in actual use. These are things experience practice have distracted. The Bates comes to you as a finished tractor from what you will get out of it, and how many working days you have when the ground is considered the operations where you cannot afford to pack and bed, and consider how constantly and economically must be performed even in rush times, you will then see the BATES STEEL MULE is the highest value offered in tractor on the American market today.
